Kagan Structures for Engagement and Achievement!

Reading Between the Lines

Develop Deep Thinking While Reading in Every Subject!

For Educators of Grades K-12

Highlights

- Show students how to read closely to make logical inferences from texts
- Structure team sharing to explain and describe points of view
- Have students identify key ideas and details and share them with classmates
- Use strategies to have students ask and answer questions to demonstrate understanding
- Develop the skills of describing relationships between varying texts
- Teach your class to cite specific textual evidence to support conclusions drawn from a text
- Promote comprehension of complex literary and informational texts

Today's standards demand students think more deeply about more complex texts and support their thinking with evidence from the text. Consequently, students are expected to deal with and understand authors' ideas, not just the information stated directly in the text. This workshop provides you with simple, concrete activities and engaging structures that guide students to develop metacognition skills to think about how they make inferences daily. You experience engaging structures to propel students to actively interact with texts—making the complex inferential process a habit of mind for all students.

Rave Reviews!

"I can't believe I've taught for seven years without this. I keep thinking how much better I could have served my former students and how well I will serve my future students."
—Jen Blunier, Reading Teacher

"The content has been very helpful to me as a coach. I can take this back and model better reading lessons for my teachers."
—Casey Massey, Grades K-5 Reading Coach

"Great strategies! I teach computer skills and work with struggling readers. I learned strategies I can use with either group."
—Ann Karels, Teacher
